Hewshott were engaged as independent consultants for BG&E's landmark office relocation to Kings Square 1 in the Perth CBD. This was a complex project with a wide range of meeting and collaboration spaces including a virtual reality studio used for internal design and client demonstrations.

Focusing on the outcome, Hewshott provided a stress-free experience for the client, ensuring the IT systems and services were operational right from launch. Hewshott worked closely with, not just the client, but external consultants to ensure that all needs and timelines were met to deliver a successful and functioning project.

A finished, physical, network ready site was required to mount active equipment and deliver network architecture to the business. AV is heavily reliant on IT, a thorough understanding of both disciplines is needed as well as knowledge of how these two technologies come together and 'talk' to each other. This is where Hewshott's strengths come into play, covering multiple disciplines. Acoustically, the interior design and control of sound within the spaces was suitably incorporated, elevating it to the next level.

Hewshott's team worked seamlessly together to deliver quality solutions with the three disciplines overlapping and yielding excellent results. The efforts of Hewshott were recognised by BG&E with a special mention during their opening ceremony.
